City police gave four more tickets to motorists yesterday in their drive to arrest owners of motor vehicles who do not have the current city licenses, bringing the total number of tickets given to 30.

Chief of Police Ross Lane pointed out that a city ordinance states the city sticker must appear on the windshield, and that tickets will be given if the sticker does not appear there.

About Town

And Country

By TIMOTHEUS T.

MERRY MOLLY HUTT of merry England came to town and she likes things over here.

Yes sir, Miss Hutt, a vivacious and loquacious lady with auburn hair and an inquisitive mouth, from the Warwickshire county of William Shakespeare, who lives but walking distance from the home of the great authoress, George Eliot, has been visiting in Harrisburg and she didn't dream that the United States is as fine as it is.

She'd been told of all its wonders by many of her American relatives. But she had to see to believe.

There were no qualifications about her admiration of this country.

"Before I made this, my first trip, to the United States, I had no desire to become an American citizen, because I like England very much—but since coming here—ah!—there's no limit as to what a person can do or how great he can be."

That's what she said to Timotheus yesterday.

Miss Hutt is the headmistress, which corresponds to school principal here, in a primary school at Nuncheon. It has students ranging in ages from five to eleven plus. She has a leave until October 1 but is planning to write to extend the time to November 1.

Oh Timmo thought he had the name of her town and school figured out. I knew there was Eaton, the great school, and since this school she taught was not Eaton, I thought that maybe perhaps that was why they called the place Nuncheon.

But I was wrong. Miss Hutt told me that because there was a nursery there—only the ruins now stand—the town was called Nuncheon which means Nunstown on the Water.

I was about to forget to tell you why she's here. Mrs. R. C. Davenport and Mrs. Stanley Wilson of this city are sisters of her late mother. There's a double connection, also. The late Mr. Hutt, her father, was a cousin of R. C. Davenport, George Davenport and the late Tom Davenport of this city, of Mrs. Bayard Goode of Con-

Queen Betty will represent the SEIEC in the state REA beauty contest to be held at Springfield Sept. 6. Winner of the state contest is eligible to compete in the REA national beauty contest.

Newlyweds Hurt; Truck, Car Crash

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill.—The widow of Mary Holland, one of five believed killed by Leslie Irvin, and his bride of a few hours, were injured in a car-truck collision Tuesday afternoon a mile east of here on Ill. 13.

Addison (Doc) Holland, 39, of 709 S. Frederick St., Evansville, and wife, Peggy, 28, were reported in "fair" condition in Ferrell hospital in Eldorado.

Hospital officials said Holland received head injuries and deep face cuts, and his wife a badly injured knee cap.

Holland was the husband of Mary Holland, killed Dec. 2, 1954, in the Bellemeade Liquor Store operated by the Hollands.

Irvin, awaiting execution for the murder of service station attendant W. Wesley Kerr on Dec. 23, 1954, was indicted for the murder of Mary Holland and four others.

Gallatin County Sheriff Millard Holloway said the car driven by Holland passed another vehicle headed east on Ill. 13 and hit a truck operated by Arthur Strickland, 45, of Harrisburg, as the truck was making a left turn onto Old Shawneetown road.

He said the car was a total loss after it jammed underneath the R. A. Adams coal truck at 4:45 p. m.

Strickland was uninjured, the sheriff said.

Sheriff Holloway said Holland and his bride were issued a marriage license in the county clerk's office at Shawneetown Tuesday afternoon. Hospital officials said the couple told them they were married before the accident.

Mrs. Holland is the former Peggy Bellville of 640 Madison Ave., Evansville.

Old Ben Coal Co. Centralizes Its Offices at Benton

BENTON, Ill. (U)—The Old Ben Coal Corp. will move into its new southern Illinois central office building at Benton this Monday.

George Strunck, superintendent of all surface plants, said all area offices including billing, supply, payroll, engineering and executive—now scattered at the company's various mines in southern Illinois—would be consolidated under one roof.

No Chicago offices or personnel of the company will be transferred to Benton, officials say.

The new single story brick building is centrally located in respect to the company's three operating mines in Franklin County—at Buckner, Valer and West Frankfort. Present offices are located at various abandoned pits of the company.

Soil Expert Harry Gearhart, Former Local Man, Gets Harvard Fellowship

Harry Gearhart, area conservationist with headquarters in Mt. Vernon, has been selected as one of three soil conservationists in the United States for a fellowship at Harvard university.

Mr. Gearhart, formerly with the soil conservation service in Harrisburg, will attend the Harvard Graduate school with a Littauer Fellowship. The school term begins Sept. 9 and upon completion of the nine months course of study Mr. Gearhart will return to the Mt. Vernon office.

It is stated that five soil conservationists in the nation are recommended for the Littauer Fellowships annually and three are selected by officials at Harvard. At Harvard Mr. Gearhart will be in school studying the conservation of all national resources and will be associated with people in all phases of conservation.

Mr. and Mrs. Gearhart will leave shortly after the first of September for Cambridge, Mass., to prepare for the start of the school term.

Sam Winfrey of Salem, farm planner in Marion county, will be acting area conservationist during Mr. Gearhart's absence.

Dulles Canal Plan Puts Egypt on Spot

LONDON (U)—Overwhelming support for the Dulles plan for international operation of the Suez Canal put Egypt on the spot today but apparently did not weaken its firm stand.

The Big Three split the Afro-Asian bloc and lined up 17 of the 22 nations attending the Suez conference in favor of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' proposals.

Delegates today began selection of a committee of small nations to take the Dulles' plan to Cairo despite advance warning it was unacceptable to President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Lee Has New Ski Record, Still Going

LAKE OZARK, Mo. (U)—Lyle Lee, skiing through the night in 53 degree temperature, set a new endurance record on water skis early today and is continuing his try for a 500-mile run on Lake Ozark.

The 27-year-old instructor from Galatia, Ill., started his endurance run shortly after 6 p. m. CST Tuesday. He continued through the night on still waters of the sprawling Lake of the Ozarks.

A spokesman said he wore a woolly shirt to protect him from the unseasonably cool temperatures of the area.

At 7:18 a. m. he passed the 400 mile mark and about an hour later broke the world record of 426 miles non-stop on water skis. He told companions he might try for 600 miles.

Lee was making the run on a circular course laid out in advance. Each lap of the route was 40 miles which took about 1½ hours to complete.

A companion who rides through each lap handed Lee liquids such as hot soups and tomato juice. The tow boat has to be refueled in motion.

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (U)—Adlai E. Stevenson today charged that the Republican's promise of a tax cut was "so much election talk" and was a contradiction of President Eisenhower's pledge to cut the national debt.

Convention And Politics Boiled Down

EISENHOWER

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—Close associates of President Eisenhower said today the Chief Executive expected the Republican National Convention to renominate Vice President Richard M. Nixon as his running mate.

Mr. Eisenhower, according to staff members, anticipated no flare-up on the convention floor when Nixon's name is offered to the delegates at this afternoon's session.

Mr. Eisenhower was standing pat on his announced position on the vice presidential nomination—that he would be happy to have Nixon on the ticket again but that it was up to the convention to make its own "free choice."

STEVENSON

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (U)—Adlai E. Stevenson will launch a whirlwind air trip about the country Monday for talks to local political leaders and to prepare the groundwork in his presidential campaign.

Stevenson will be accompanied to the eight regional meetings, five of them next week, by his vice presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. First stop was to be Santa Fe, N. M.

TAFT

CONVENTION HALL, San Francisco (U)—"Mr. Republican"—the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio—was memorialized at the Republican National Convention Tuesday night.

Taft, who lost a bruising one-ballot battle to President Eisenhower for the 1952 GOP nomination, died of cancer in July, 1953.

Delegates to the convention stood with bowed heads and observed one minute of silence in memory of a man eulogized by Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut as "one of the greatest Republicans of all time."

Will Second Nomination on Vice President

Californian Goes
To Ailing Father; to Ballot 4:30 Our Time

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—President Eisenhower announced today that Harold E. Stassen has abandoned his effort to prevent the nomination of Vice President Richard M. Nixon for another term and instead will make a seconding speech in behalf of Nixon.

Mr. Eisenhower told a suddenly called news conference that Stassen made known his position to him during a conference this morning.

He said Stassen now is convinced that the great mass of the delegates are for Nixon, and that "the best service" he can perform is to support Nixon. Accordingly, the President said, Stassen will seek permission to second Nixon for renomination.

Believe Will Speak

It was believed a certainty that Stassen, who is not a delegate to the national convention, would be given permission to speak.

Mr. Eisenhower quoted Stassen as having told him this morning that he now is convinced that the majority of the delegates want Nixon and that Stassen "saw no reason to go further with his efforts" to seek another vice presidential nominee.

This was especially true since Stassen's own pick for the vice presidency, Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, positively refused to let his name be put before the convention.

Meanwhile Republican leaders in conferences with President Eisenhower today nailed down the final arrangements for renomination of an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket by the GOP National Convention late this afternoon.

Day of Jubilation

For delegates to the convention it was a day of jubilation and joyful anticipation of victory for the ticket in November. But for Vice President Richard M. Nixon, on the eve of his triumphant renomination, it became a day of personal anxiety.

The youthful vice president was told by telephone that his ailing 77-year-old father, Frank, had taken a sudden turn for the worse at 5 a. m. CST and was in a critical condition at his home in the suburban Los Angeles town of Whittier.

Nixon immediately canceled all engagements of what was to have been one of his busiest convention days. With his wife, Pat, and brother, Don, he boarded an airplane and left at 9:15 a. m. CST for his father's bedside.

Assured of Triumph

No one knew whether Nixon could get back here before the convention winds up. He was scheduled to make an acceptance speech, along with the President, at the close Thursday evening.

The elder Nixon was stricken with what doctors called a "dissecting aneurysm of the aorta," a condition causing internal bleeding and great pain. He was in a "state of shock" and his "condition is critical," the doctors said. But the convention went on and Nixon was assured of triumph.

Chairman Leonard W. Hall came away from a breakfast conference in the President's hotel suite with the declaration he is confident the

Stevenson's Victory

EDITORIAL BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

Adlai Stevenson's successful quest for a second Democratic presidential nomination means that in 1956 both major parties will present the face of moderation to the American people.

All the solid indications of the nation's mood today suggest that this is the way the people want it to be. Nominating conventions may be cumbersome, confusing, talky and often painfully dragged out affairs. But in their strange way they usually produce results in tune with the popular temper.

Beginning with his series of late spring primary victories in Oregon, Florida and California, Stevenson demonstrated unmistakably that he was the choice of his party for a second try at the White House. Though there were evident misgivings in some professional political quarters, most top Democratic leaders did not appear to regard it as fatal to his 1956 chances that Stevenson had lost to President Eisenhower in 1952 by more than 6,500,000 votes.

He did poll some 27,000,000 votes, more than any other defeated candidate in history. And he came close to equalling the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt's greatest Democratic total.

On top of this, from the politician's viewpoint, Stevenson had the virtue of being a unifying factor in his party. His moderation on many counts made him acceptable to both the southern and northern wings.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, the only other major contender still in the field at convention time, had no such acceptability. As an exponent of militant New Deal-Fair Deal programs, an advocate of more drastic action on civil rights, it was believed could only divide his party.

It was judged further that the policies and attitudes Harriman represents are not those the country is seeking.

Despite arguments by former President Truman and others that Mr. Eisenhower has pre-empted the middle of the road and left Democrats no choice but to move to other zones, the delegates at Chicago decided their party should contest the President in the center.

Stevenson plainly is a man of high capacities. Though he is not the fresh face he was in 1952, he still rates as a relatively new type in politics. Obviously he is a type which many professionals and rank and file people in the Democratic party believe is good for them and could be good for the country. His triumph at Chicago gives the ascendancy to those Democrats who are trying to move with history. It assures Americans of a choice between two men whose programs and policies fall within the temperate political zone the people themselves inhabit today.

"They're Off!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Nixon works a miracle; Herter probable choice to replace Hoover; Stassen didn't "clear it with Sidney."

SAN FRANCISCO.—Here is the inside story of how Vice President Nixon accomplished the political miracle getting his longtime rival Senator William Knowland to side with him in the Stassen-Nixon feud.

There are few men in Republican politics who have more natural antipathy for each other than Nixon and Knowland. Both young, both ambitious, Knowland has followed a steady conservative, plodding course; Nixon in contrast has been meteoric. He has been conservative to conservatives, liberal to liberals. Once something of an isolationist he is now a great internationalist.

The two young senators reached the near-breaking point when Knowland, in 1952, refused the offer of the vice presidency from the late Senator Taft in return for swinging the potent California delegation to him. Knowland remained loyal to Governor Earl Warren, the man who appointed him to the senate. Probably Knowland would be president today had he yielded to temptation. He didn't.

But opportunist Nixon did. He tried to swing the California delegation and failed. But Tom Dewey, who handled Eisenhower's strategy, went through with his pledge to Nixon anyway.

Since then, Nixon has not improved his relations with Knowland by acting as official spokesman for Eisenhower in the senate—a domain where Knowland is the titular Republican leader. There were even reports during this McCarthy battle that Nixon was maneuvering to replace Knowland as senate leader.

Now, however, the two men have made up. Nixon's best ally in the Stassen battle is Bill Knowland. This is partly because Knowland, a conservative, doesn't fancy Stassen, figures he's too liberal, might use his influence to recognize Red China.

But there was also a very important secret deal. Nixon has promised to let Knowland play a major hand in foreign policy in the future. He will be consulted more, listened to more, and here is the clincher: When and if Nixon becomes president of the United States, Bill Knowland will become secretary of state.

HERTER PUNCTURED

Here is the inside story of how Gov. Chris Herter folded up like a punctured balloon and has been bowing low to brother Nixon in the Stassen controversy.

Herter, a New England blue blood and Henry Wallace type of idealist, has long wanted to play a greater part in foreign affairs. That was his forte when he served in the house of representatives. When Stassen approached him about running for vice-president—as he definitely did in advance—Herter concurred. However, when Chairman Len Hall phoned him and used bullheaded persuasion on him, Herter quickly folded. For two reasons. Herter lacks political guts. If he had one-tenth the brass of Gov. Happy Chandler of Kentucky and mixed it up with his own idealism he would be an unbeatable political combination.

Second, Herter wants a post inside the next Eisenhower administration—and was promised one.

Here is the scheme of things to watch as far as the future of Chris Herter is concerned:

It isn't advertised, but it's a recognized fact around diplomatic circles that Herbert Hoover has been a disappointment as under-secretary of state. He hasn't had sufficient background in foreign affairs, makes such honest and naive statements as "I don't know a thing about Cyprus. I've got to bone up on it."

The Near East was supposed to be his particular bailiwick, and that bailiwick is now near the exploding point. He was among those who fell for the persuasive charm of Colonel Nasser and threw American diplomatic eggs into his basket. He also let Greece get out of hand over Cyprus.

So you will find that Herter Hoover will retire sometime next year and be replaced by Chris Herter of Massachusetts.

Later he is supposed to replace John Foster Dulles as secretary of state.

Note—This leaves the Republicans with two prospective secretaries of state, all as a result of Dick Nixon's frantic determination to remain as vice president.

Vice President Nixon came here about two weeks early and started mending his political fences. He had considerable mending to do in the California delegation, because about half were in sympathy with anti-Nixon Governor Goody Knight. Nixon has shown great private concern about the Stassen movement. He sounded out almost every politician who came to see him about any progress Stassen was making, especially whether he had raised much money. Politicians, comparing notes after visits to Nixon, found he asked each almost the same questions. . . . Some of the big GOP money boys in New York would like to dump Dick, but fear retaliation. . . . What lurks in the mind of every incipient Nixon rebel is the probability that Nixon will be president of the United States before four years are up. . . . One mistake Stassen made was not to "clear it with Sidney."

The Democrats had their "clear it with Sidney" policy in 1944 when Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and a power in the War Production Board vetoed Jimmy Byrnes for vice president. The Republican Sidney was Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant banking firm of Goldman-Sachs and one of the biggest money raisers for Ike. Stassen failed to clear with Sidney Weinberg first, and Sidney has now come out in support of Nixon publicly, though privately he's been just the opposite.

Leather Accessories Complete Costume

The smart gal knows that a few basic costumes and a wardrobe of leather accessories in varied styles and colors makes for plenty of style at a minimum cost.

She can wear the exact same shade of her costume—in shoes of fine, polished smooth calf—bag of a grainy calf—and gloves of a soft suede! Or she may choose from a multitude of other leather textures.

To name but a few, there are: matte leather, which has a smooth unpolished finish; crushed leather, in which the natural grain is emphasized; reversed calf, which is a super-plushy suede calf; embossed and printed leathers; and aniline-dyed leathers.

Leather bags are slimmer, and clean and simple in outline but with fine detail. Rectangles, squares and elongated squares are popular shapes.

And, of course, a good-looking leather belt can make a sweater and skirt costume. Belts this year may be trimmed with everything from bright brass harness hardware to multi-colored jewels.

Popular leather colors for Fall will include "Shook-hued" reds, blues, and greens as well as sand-to-coffee browns, black and navy, of course!

Help Child Find Book Treasures

Have you ever wondered how you can help junior to read and study more? Are you doing your best to coordinate his study habits with the requirements of his school?

First of all, be sure that there is an adequate shelf of basic books to provide your child with minimum reading requirements. You can begin by stocking it with the Holy Bible, a good standard dictionary, and a volume of famous quotations. But this is a bare minimum.

For further information on this subject, the alert parent should consult regularly with his child's teacher. He can also consult the yearly reading lists that many library systems issue for his child's reading guidance.

Both teachers and librarians are more than happy to consult with parents about proper reading and study requirements. The wise supervision of junior's extra-curricular reading is advisable.

Many parents are learning the desirability of reading with their children. Frequently this is done aloud with all the family participating. This arouses a keen interest in books that can remain with the child throughout his life.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

You must be born anew. John 3:7.

There is a spiritual kingdom with us. We should elevate this spiritual kingdom to a dominant place, and cease responding to animal impulses. We have a divine heredity that we should honor.

Fashions in Corduroys for Pre-Teens

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Corduroy looks, at first glance, like anything but corduroy this fall. The same velvety feel is there but the fabric itself may be printed or plain or plaid or stripe. Its colors are vivid and unusually beautiful.

For pre-teens, with their special figure problems, designers have done wonderful things with corduroy. They've used it for ensembles and slim jumper dresses, for clothes with lines that pare down the figure and minimize a waistline that usually makes a pre-teen groan in anxiety to add a couple of years and stretch out lengthwise a bit.

We show here two designs in corduroy for pre-teens. Reversible coat (left) has plaid printed corduroy on one side, solid color on the other. It's worn with matching skirt and (new for pre-teens) a coordinated blouse in gold wool jersey. This ensemble is by Johnston of Dallas.

Jumper dress with back-buttoned jacket (right) is in a solid color with coordinated stripe. This is by Semi-Teen.

Trio Die, 3 Live in Big Plane Crash

PALM BEACH AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—Three crewmen were killed and three critically injured Tuesday night when a lumbering C124 troop transport crashed and burned while attempting an emergency landing.

Air Force officials were not certain how three of the crew members survived the crash, but said their escape was "almost miraculous."

Apparently they were hurled free of the four-engine plane when it smashed into a field, then rushed to a hospital by an unidentified civilian, one official said.

Campus Shades for Men Lighter

When there's nothing left of summer vacations but pleasant memories, the move back to college is the last national event to set an official seal on the opening of the fall season.

The young man on his way back to the halls of ivy will have plenty to occupy his mind. He has his reputation of being a pace-setter in men's fashions to think of and you can bet he's giving plenty of thought to what he'll wear on the campus this year.

The college man's list for fall 1956 will undoubtedly include the following items:

Three-button Ivy League flannel or worsted suits, in lighter tones such as Cambridge gray, gray-green or medium blue.

Ivy League sport jacket, with colorful vertical stripe design, or bold glen plaid.

Small shape tweed or worsted cap in a stripe or plaid, with belt and buckle at the rear.

Finger tip length duffer coat, short overcoat or British Warmer, in light-weight wool tweed, worsted, gabardine, covert or melton.

Wool argyle socks.

At least two all-wool sweaters in the new bold colors and continentally-inspired styles.

Two pairs of slim, Ivy League

WAIST-LENGTH jacket is in gray and white lightweight wool herringbone tweed. It's lined in leather.

lightweight flannel or worsted slacks in Cambridge or banker's gray.

When it comes to sweaters, Joe College has a wide range from which to make his selection this year. A relatively new item which is rising to new heights of popularity this fall is the sweater-shirt, an all-wool sweater with opening and collar at the neck and long sleeves.

Favored models feature a wide chest stripe in a contrasting color. Straight-fitting cardigans with Continental rolled collar and long sleeves are also important.

Although double-breasted vests and low cut, sleeveless pullovers are claiming attention, still the most favored item on the college man's sweater list is the long-sleeved crew neck model. Soft, fleecy shetland is much in demand, and top colors are bold red, blue, lemon, smoke gray, olive green and light tan.

In V-neck sweaters, stripes are highlighting the neckline — deep, wide stripes in bold contrasting colors.

Two of the most widely worn garments on the American campus this fall will be the duffer coat and the short overcoat. Most popular duffer (three quarter length) coat is double breasted with wide collar and leather fastenings at the front, in covert or melton, tan, Cambridge gray or olive green.

It is slightly less full than the pioneer duffer coats. In the short overcoat department, covert and wool herringbone tweed will predominate. These coats are double breasted with leather buttons, in shades of lighter tan and gray, and some feature wool fleece-lined collars.

This year, sport jackets promise to be the most important items on the college man's back-to-school list. Vertically striped blazer type jackets are the overwhelming favorites, Ivy League models with natural shoulders three button fronts, in soft wool tweeds, light-weight worsteds.

Popular color combinations are wine red with light gray and black, smoke blue with light tan, and olive green with gray and medium tan. Plaids have also risen to high importance in sport jackets.

Big, bold glen plaids are the order of the day in shades of tan and red, gray and blue, many being of the "odd jacket" variety with extra ticket pocket, two-side vents.

Joe College slacks will of course bear strong evidences of the Ivy League influence. They'll be slim legged, in Cambridge or banker's gray, with pleatless front and strap and buckle at the back.

NEWS note in shirts is this one of white broadcloth with two-toned dots. It's worn with harmonizing tie.

Teen-Age Girls Love Luxury

Cashmere, Leather, Tweeds are Favorites; Now Corduroy is Lush

One viewer of the sociological scene claims that the only true leisure class in the country today consists of teen-agers.

Many frantically busy-with-little teeners would heartily deny this statement, but there is no denying that some of the earmarks are there: eagerness to be up to the moment, attention to fads, concern with self, high attendance at entertainments.

Certainly the clothing designers consider the teens in this light. The newest fashions are designed for figures almost extinct past 20 — small bosoms, small waists, long legs, good muscles.

No one but a teen-ager looks just right in a sweater. The wide variety of sweater designs appear first on teens. Typical of this is a bulky cable-knit by Regal. On a teen-ager, it's youthful and sporty.

Teen girls go uninhibitedly for luxury in fabric. A woman who manages a home may consider more than one cashmere sweater folly, but it's not impossible for a teen to own 10.

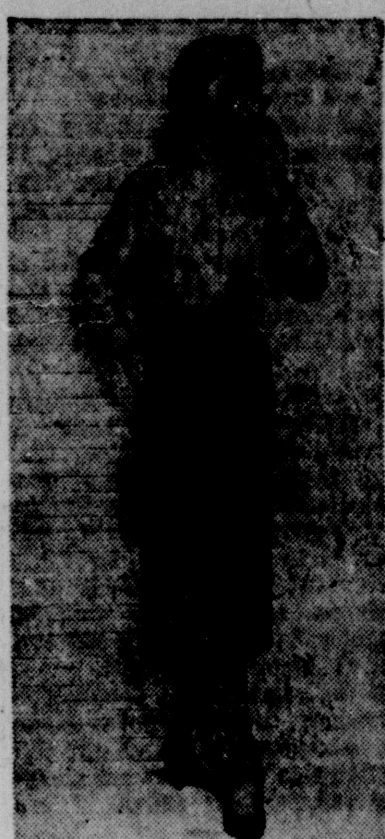

Typical of this love for good fabric is the teen's love for leather. Her mother may covet a leather handbag and gloves and unfailingly buy leather shoes, but the teen in the family can wear it from top to toe. The white leather jacket is a teen item.

The full-length leather coat, lined with fleece, is a teen favorite. Soft leather coordinates of jacket and hat indicate the teen's love of luxury.

She also likes good wool. Splint-er-slim skirts in British lamb's wool blossom on teen-agers with no hip problems. Coats in handsome tweeds are not uncommon on the pre-fur coat set.

The teen's love of pattern and style has sent the corduroy business to its designers in a hurry. Comfortable corduroy appears in sheath jumpers with a velvet-colored jacket.

The opposite of the long-ago corduroy separates that weren't meant to fit, this school age item really fits and is done in a printed Stuart plaid that satisfies the teen's desire for color and pattern.

SIDE pockets and front tabs give style notes to ever-popular straight skirt, done in British lamb's wool.

LEATHER from top to toe, this miss wears cap and jacket in cabretta, saddle leather bag, washable gloves, suede shoes.

BULKY cable-knit sweater with turtleneck is red for looks, wool for warmth. Goes with knee pants or skirt.

Good Habits

Here is advice from a managerial specialist to high school boys who are planning a career in industry with the hope of rising to an executive position.

"Learn to organize your day's work and activities while you are still in school," says M. L. Van Dagens, Plymouth director of management development. He points out that "the boy who acquires this habit is the one most likely to succeed in the automobile industry."

Van Dagens says the need for planning the day's work applies particularly to automobile retail sales, and is accentuated in the training courses which dealers provide for new salesmen. He stresses the fact that most of the top sales executives in the industry started their careers as retail salesmen.

He believes the courses a boy chooses in high school are of less importance than the way he applies himself to the chosen subjects, and the way he plans his work.

THIS IS THE WAY WE GO TO SCHOOL—Light and dark and dark with light is the formula these girls display in matching their feather garments and accessories to the rest of their costume. They also display the versatility of classic styles that will be good for many years — a belted model with wide notched revers and push-up sleeves — and a long, straight-lined jacket with a coat styled front!

CORDUROY in a Stuart plaid makes a jumper and jacket. Good for teen special occasion, not overdressy.

Teen Town Notes

By Joan Seright

Hi Gang!

Here I am back again to bring you the "greatest latest." I want to restate a paragraph I wrote last week because there was some misunderstanding. So . . .

While I was in California at the Navy base on Long Beach (Terminal Island) I saw Harlon Seats. He is now on his way to Japan. I understand from his father that he is in Hawaii. (Join the Navy and see the world.) ! ! !

More mistakes to correct—While I was gone Mr. Ronald Darnell chaperoned and we forgot to include his name. I'm sorry I'm late with my thanks to him, but it is still as sincere.

Thanks to the following chaperones who did such a nice job of helping us out: Mrs. Shingler, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Burbank, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kilmire.

I think we have a right to be proud of our Teen Town. During the summer we have had many visitors and we want to invite them back all through the winter months. We can also be proud of our regular attendance. We have still maintained a regular crowd even though many of our members are on vacation and working out of town.

I want to welcome home our boys from the Army Reserves. Their stay was only for two weeks and that is nearly "all gone," but we were all glad to see them again. Those home are Jim Williams, Jack Wright, Jerry Armistead, Jay Waite and Danny James. Kenneth Price and Bob Patton are also home.

Guess I'd better stop with that little bit of news.

SEE YOU AT TEEN TOWN

Taylorville Votes $700,000 for Lake

TAYLORVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Taylorville citizens Tuesday approved a $700,000 bond issue to begin construction of a municipal lake as a water reservoir for the city. The lake is expected to cost about $1,200,000.

Paschen Probe Wrangles Over Welfare Books

County Grand Jury Wants New Look But It's Doubtful

CHICAGO (AP)—County and federal authorities wrangled Tuesday over the handling of records pertaining to an "employees welfare fund" maintained until recently in the office of Cook County Treasurer Herbert C. Paschen.

A federal marshal was asked to bring the records back today for another look by the county grand jury, but chances for their return appeared doubtful.

Federal District Judge John P. Barnes ordered U. S. Atty. Robert E. Ticken to show the records to the county grand jury Tuesday. At the same time, he specified that the documents must remain in the custody of a U. S. marshal.

Barnes also said they must be returned to the federal grand jury Tuesday.

Marshal William W. Kipp carried records and cancelled checks of the fund to the county grand jury, but would not let them out of sight while the jury studied them. He also refused to let State Atty. John Gutknecht make photostats of them.

Later, Kipp kept a tight grasp on the records outside a courtroom while John W. F. Smith testified about them inside the room. Smith resigned from his job as chief personnel clerk in Paschen's office following disclosures of the fund. He served as administrator of the fund.

Gutknecht charged the grand jury investigation of the fund, now abolished, was "stymied" by Ticken's interpretation of Barnes' order. Barnes, however, said both Ticken and Kipp acted properly under terms of the order he issued.

Investigation by a Chicago newspaper (The Sun-Times) revealed the $29,000 fund in Paschen's office. Donations were made by banks holding county funds which drew no interest. Paschen said the fund involved no wrongdoing, but ordered it dissolved and the money returned to the banks.

The fund was turned up in the wake of investigation into Orville E. Hodge's embezzlement of about one million dollars in state funds. While authorities bickered over "welfare" fund records, Hodge settled into prison routine at Menard State Penitentiary. Today he began serving the second day of his 12 to 15-year sentence.

Stassen Gives Up;

It'll Be Ike and Nixon

ticket will be "Ike and Dick." No Shouted Acclamation But Hall said there will be no automatic nomination of either man by shouted acclamation. Convention Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts said the meeting rules could be suspended to do away with the roll call vote of individual state delegations.

"But that won't be done today," Martin said. "The roll will be called state-by-state for both president and vice president."

That means that each state delegation will cast its votes in roll calls. Also, that the way will be open for other names than Eisenhower and Nixon's to be put before the convention.

"We are going to maintain the full tradition of an open convention," said Martin.

Halls Eats With Eisenhower Hall and the President had breakfast together while Stassen waited in the wings of the White House suite at the St. Francis Hotel, hoping for a chance to talk with Mr. Eisenhower.

Hall said the President still hoped that the convention would be "open." This meant that Mr. Eisenhower would have no objection to the consideration of any other candidate.

Hall said that Mr. Eisenhower met earlier with Nixon and expressed his wishes and the wishes of all the American people for the quick recovery of Mr. Nixon's father.

Hall said that the convention would proceed on schedule.

Nomination at 4:30 The nominating session was to begin at 4:30 p. m. CST.

Nixon earlier had urged delegates to let Stassen have his say. But convention officials pointed out that a single delegate's objection could block it since Stassen, as a non-delegate, required unanimous consent to speak.

The victory fever which seized the delegates upon Mr. Eisenhower's arrival from Washington on Tuesday night mounted steadily today as the hour approached for the nominating session.

Dewey Gives Address Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, a two-time loser for the presidency, drew the task of warming up the delegates with a speech before they began voting for the re-nomination of their first winning ticket in 24 years.

Dewey charged that the last Democratic administration was marked by "fixing and bribe taking" and said Democrats now "want to start doing it all over again."

Throws Back Attack "It's our job to see that they don't get the chance," he said in his prepared speech. "Four years ago the American people won honest, high-minded capable government. We have it today and we should go out and make sure we keep it. That is a job for every American in this election."

Dewey threw back at the Democrats former President Truman's attack on Adlai E. Stevenson last week before Stevenson won the party's nomination for president. He quoted other pre-nomination comments by one Democrat on another.

"Why if any Republican said those things the Democrats would cry from the house tops that we were campaigning from the gutter," Dewey said. "That we will not do. We will leave it to the Democrat leaders to appraise each other at whatever level they find most appropriate."

some of the biggest names in politics.

The GOP had been reported trying to get former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey or Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. to run against Lehman in its attempt to regain control of the Senate.

Lehman gave the nod to New York City Mayor Robert F. Wagner as his favorite for the Democratic nomination and also being mentioned were Rep. Emanuel Celler and Thomas K. Finletter, air secretary under former President Truman.

WOMEN

CONVENTION HALL, San Francisco (AP)—Fifteen women spoke in 30 minutes—a record, according to some males—at the Republican National Convention's gay, colorful ladies' day.

The feminine orators, top leaders in government and politics, outnumbered their counterparts at past Republican conventions but they still managed to jam their oratory into a bare half hour.

The women, who were a feature at Tuesday's marathon session, were upstaged by the arrival of President Eisenhower at nearby International Airport and gave their brief speeches to a half-empty Cow Palace.

DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic attention focused today on eight states where a top party strategist predicted good to excellent chances of unseating GOP senators.

At the same time the Democrats prepared an urgent drive for campaign funds under newly named campaign finance chief Roger L. Stevens.

Sen. George A. Smathers D-Fla., chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said his party's chances of increasing its present two-man Senate majority in the November election "have become considerably stronger."

He said Democratic candidates have good to excellent chances of unseating Republican senators in Illinois, Connecticut, California, Pennsylvania, Maryland, South Dakota, North Dakota and Ohio.

MAMIE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mamie Eisenhower lined up a busy round of chit-chats with lady delegates during the first day of her San Francisco visit today.

The President's wife agreed to look in on a Women's Citizens' for Eisenhower coffee klatch this morning at her hotel and then go on to look over the latest California styles at a fashion show given by the California Republican Committee.

The idea behind these quick visits was to give the lady delegates to the Republican National Convention a better look at Mamie.

Fine Soybean and Corn Yields Near Maturity in State

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Corn and soybeans in Illinois are rapidly approaching maturity, with "exceptional yields" in prospect, the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service said today.

Despite damp, cool weather over much of the state, the service said, the corn crop is maturing slightly ahead of normal, and about 80 per cent of the crop is in dough stage, more than 30 per cent in or beyond dent stage.

The crop service said soybean podding is nearly complete in all except late planted fields, but lodging of the bean plants will make harvest more difficult in some areas.

Early soybean varieties in southern Illinois will be ready to harvest next week.

The crop service said soil moisture is "generally adequate," with 72 per cent of its correspondents reporting ample moisture supplies, 7 per cent a surplus and 21 per cent reporting a moisture shortage.

Some 93 per cent of the correspondents reported a moisture shortage at this time last year.

The southern Illinois peach harvest will near its peak this week, the crop service said.

The 17th annual SEIEC meeting, held at the headquarters near Eldorado, attracted large crowds for all three sessions, but the largest crowd was present Tuesday afternoon, when a jam-packed program was presented.

During the afternoon there was a job training and safety demonstration, an eye-popping act of mystery by Nardini and Nadyne, a demonstration by state police on the use of radar in the war against speeding on the highways, the awarding of many door prizes, entertainment by the winners of the talent contest held Monday evening plus the beauty show.

Tuesday morning the business session was held and four members of the Board of Directors were re-elected for three year terms. Re-elected were W. L. Bradley, Gallatin county; W. E. Hunt, Hamilton county; George Aydelott, Saline county and Ray Webb, Johnson county.

Other members of the board are Gilbert Galloway, Franklin county; Loyd Pickard, Franklin county; J. D. Student Council Workshop Attended By Local Persons

The fifth annual workshop of the Illinois Association of Student Councils met recently at Western Illinois State College in Macomb, Ill.

Attending from Harrisburg were Charles Cummins, president of the local council; Alleenell Bean, treasurer; Anne Endsley, secretary; Judy Franks, president of the Collinsville district, and Jim Cummins, who represented the vice president, Bryon Jones, who was unable to attend because of illness.

Five discussion groups were attended: Leadership training; how to get student participation in Student Council; aims, objectives and challenges of the Student Council; what makes a good Student Council member; relationship of the Student Council to the community and to other schools.

Mrs. Margaret Phegley, adviser at large on the I. A. S. C. board from the Red Bud high school, planned the program which included a square dance, an orchestra dance, and swimming, bowling, golfing and tennis at all times.

The council planned three projects to promote this year: (1) adopt a school plan to mother-inactive student councils and unorganized councils; (2) public relations package which will include publicizing the good deeds of the council; and (3) traveling scrapbook which will go from school to school and each Student Council will enter their work during the year.

Due to summer school activities the sponsor, H. B. Bauman, did not attend, and in his place, Miss Nora Lampe, sponsor of the Carmi Student Council, served as director over the group.

Today she left for Sullivan, Ill., for a short visit and will leave with Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Davenport for a trip to Colorado, where she will ascend Pike's Peak.

She'll return here and before she leaves, this person, who seems to have a profound interest in everything American, hopes to visit our schools. And I'll wager she'll have questions.

One more thing before I stop writing about Miss Hutt. First day she was off the boat in New York she was offered a job at the Sheraton-Astor, and another person offered her an audition for a TV job. But she came on home with her aunt, Mrs. R. C. Davenport, after taking a good look at Washington, D. C.

Ace Scientist Believes World of The Future Will Go Underground

By Dick Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA)—Throw away your space helmet and buy a good flashlight. One of America's top scientists thinks the world of the future will go underground.

Dr. Finn J. Larsen is the man who envisions a future—and not too far off, either—when people will live and work and play beneath the earth's surface. The basic reason for the exodus is, according to Larsen, that more of the earth's surface will be needed for farming to feed the anticipated increase in population by 1980. That, and the traffic congestion, will force people underground, he thinks.

But life will be pleasant down below, if Larsen's picture of it is to be believed. For one thing, he thinks science and industry can combine to build a terra-lower atmosphere in which temperature, humidity, dust and even odor will be completely regulated.

Larsen, research director for a Minneapolis concern, sees electronic brains as a step in the right direction. These computing devices are now being fed data on people and houses and things, with the hope that they'll come up with answers about what's needed for human comfort underground.

So far, Larsen and his associates have decided that among the items any satisfactory below-surface home will need are these:

1. Electronic humidity elements. These will be so sensitive they can react to a teaspoonful of water in a room. They'll control the humidity in the homes.

2. Electronic entry traps. These would filter dust, so the homes underground would never need cleaning. While they're at it, they could rid the air coming below the surface of other nasty things like insects, bacteria and disagreeable odors.

3. Automatic temperature control. This, an advancement on the present thermostat, would automatically keep the temperature at the best level for working, sleeping, living, playing and thinking.

4. Built-in views. Since there would be no windows to look out, the scientist sees a magic wall as a pretty fair substitute. Push a button and take your pick of a mountain view, a seashore view or maybe a tenement or two if you're a confirmed city dweller. It beats a picture window.

5. Automatic odorizer. With your view of the seashore, this would add the smell of salt water to the atmosphere. Or the scent of new-mown hay when you project a farm view. With the tenement scene, you take your chances.

6. Adjustable rooms. The feeling among Larsen and his men is that life underground might get a little depressing, even with all the gadgets. So, they've imagined up a home that could switch around to suit your mood—walls that roll up into the ceiling, colors that change at will, noises that can be turned on and off, furniture that disappears.

7. (And this wouldn't be bad above ground): An electronic home computer. Larsen says it won't be long before the electronic brain gets boiled down into living room size. It will do wonders around the house—like working out a budget and figuring the income tax.

All in all, the world that Larsen paints sounds pretty good. Might as well start digging.

Watch Out!

With thousands of youngsters again scheduled to be crossing U. S. highways daily on their way to and from school, Brake-hok safety engineers offer these suggestions for parents to tell children:

1. Never to run across a street. The additional seconds it takes them to walk from the curb into traffic lanes will usually give drivers enough extra time to brake their cars to a stop.

2. Not to move into traffic lanes from behind a parked car.

3. To look to left and right before stepping off the curb.

4. To cross at intersections only and obey traffic signals where they exist.

5. To watch out for vehicles turning the corner where they are about to cross.

In the quest for a reduction of the nation's awesome auto accident toll, one of the brighter signs of progress is the increasing emphasis being placed on driver instruction in safe motor-ing.

A program of driver education in high schools, which began in 1926, has been steadily expanding to a point where today almost half of the two million youngsters who annually come of licensing age are benefiting by some type of school driving instruction.

The American Automobile Association, which is extremely active in this program, believes that this type of driver education "offers the greatest single potential for safer use of highways of any program ever offered." Auto manufacturers are also demonstrating great faith in this program by their continuing active support.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Two young pranksters who let the air out of the tires of a parked car had the tables turned on them by the car's owner who had caught them in the act. Twin Sisters to Receive Social Security Benefits Under New Law

TWIN SISTERS GET SOCIAL SECURITY PAYMENTS together. Robert W. King, claims examiner in the Harrisburg Social Security office, processes claims of Mrs. Ada Van Cleve of Muddy (center) and her twin sister, Mrs. Minnie V. Wilson of Galatia, which will result in their being the first twins to get social security payments under the new law. (Daily Register Staff Photo)

The recent amendments to the Social Security Act, according to E. Bishop Hill, district manager of the Harrisburg Social Security office, will bring monthly benefit payments to twin sisters sooner than they had expected.

The 67-year-old twins pictured above, Mrs. Minnie V. Wilson of Galatia, left and Mrs. Ada E. Van Cleve of Muddy, lost their husbands several years ago. Their husbands had worked under social security and the widows had received lump-sum payments when their husbands became deceased.

Since eligible widows may now receive payments at age 62 instead of 65, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Van Cleve have already filed their claims and will receive their first monthly checks early in December. These payments will be for the month of November.

These ladies, whose maiden name was Crabtree, were born Oct. 25, 1892. They were married to Delmar Wilson and John Van Cleve. It was necessary that Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Van Cleve give the Social Security Administration written consent to disclose information regarding their cases. Mr. Hill stated, since all social security records are confidential.

Nellie Yocum Hostess
To Sororial Club

The Sororial club met Friday at the home of Nellie Yocum. Club was opened with a business discussion. It was decided to contribute $5 to the Jim Gleyre family. A $2 check was donated to Teen Town.

Two new members, Gwen Wilson and Rosemary Nicholson, were taken into the club.

Winnie Craig, club treasurer, collected the dues and reported the club's treasury. It was agreed to purchase new bingo cards.

Various styles of bingo were played and prizes won by Bonnie Beggs, Jo Gilchrist, Twila Pritchett, Marjory Whiting and Gwen Wilson.

The door prize was won by Gwen Wilson. A lovely mystery pal gift was presented to Bonnie Beggs by the hostess.

The Chic Chi's decided to have a wiener roast for their husbands on the night of Aug. 31 at the town park.

Delicious refreshments of ham salad sandwiches, Cokes, potato chips and homemade cookies were served to Patty Durfee, Gwen Wilson, Jo Gilchrist, Bonnie Beggs, Nina Patton, Marjory Whiting, Bonnie Bolin, Judy Smith, Twila Pritchett and Vicky, Winnie Craig, and the hostess, Nellie Yocum.

The next meeting will be Sept. 6 at the home of Nina Patton in Ledford.

Union prayer meeting of Carrier Mills churches will be held Aug. 29 at 7:30 p. m. at the Nazarene church on North Mill street. Rev. Ernest Ammon, pastor of the Carrier Mills Baptist, will speak and there will be special music.

A revival is in progress this week at the Providence church west of Carrier Mills. Rev. Walter Holmes is the evangelist and Raymond Allen is the song leader. The public is invited to attend these services.

Scout Master Leslie Reeves reports that some of the Scouts in their advancement work have spent two nights at the park and during the day have worked on a bridge project.

PRACTICAL, TOO

Wrist and arm bracelets—all time students' favorites—are turning to Florence and Florentine opulence for pattern. The antique stone-studded bracelets now have charms large enough to hold pills, dollar bills and photos.

Minnesota furnished the first regiment of volunteers to the Union during the Civil War.

Writing Shows Nation's Hurry Home, School,

While penmanship may have been one of the three "R's" in the days of the little red schoolhouse, modern teaching methods have practically abolished the "Riting" in many schools today.

And in many schools, little thought is given to the importance of developing clear and legible handwriting at an early age. Consequently, bad writing habits follow a person through life.

This is the considered opinion of Robert D. Howse, president of the Watermen Pen Co.

Howse believes that as a child begins forming his handwriting characteristics at the age of eight or nine when the development of his muscular control allows him to connect letters with flowing and rounded strokes, he should be given the advantage of a flexible nib point to help him develop better and more expressive penmanship.

The average American, however, selects a stiff point when he purchases a fountain pen. Such a point writes a uniform line with no variations in width. It is a perfect instrument for scribbling down a few notes, an illegible signature on a typewritten letter or check. But the writing from such a point has as much individuality as a rubber stamp, according to Howse.

He stresses that this is not a condemnation of his fellow Americans who don't win honors in penmanship. It's just that we are so mechanized that we tend to underestimate the importance of anything done by hand.

Americans are a hurry-up-and-jot-it-down group who are concerned with what they write rather than the way it looks after it is written. We are realists who accomplish much more during a working day than the European or the Latin who is as concerned with his handwriting as the American woman is about her makeup, or the tilt of her hat.

The Europeans have exactly the opposite preferences in writing equipment.

Perhaps an equally important reason for the Europeans' ability to write well is the fact that he believes his personality is evident in his writing. He is also more artistically inclined and less prone to be in a hurry.

Many European business men write their more important letters by hand and the sure way to lose a friend is to typewrite a personal letter.

Galatia Grade School to Open Friday, August 31

The Galatia grade school will open with a half-day session Friday morning, August 31, it was announced today by Principal N. R. Gullic.

The children will return home in time for lunch. School will continue Tuesday, Sept. 4. The buses will make the runs as during the past year until necessary changes are determined.

First grade pupils should present a birth certificate upon enrolling, and first and fifth grade students must have a physical and dental examination.

The lunch room will begin operation on Sept. 4. Price of meals will be 25 cents per day or $2.50 per full ten day period. Book rental fee will be $4, and pupil insurance fee $1.

Back-To-School Sweaters Spin a Gay Yarn of Style and Variety

In every school-going wardrobe this year — the sweater is a fashion accessory. Where it used to be a part of a kind of college uniform (worn with a small white collar), it's now taken on a real individuality.

Even the classic turtle-neck has gone off in a new direction. Typical is a pullover with a high-rising neckline that's a series of tiers. These are turned back and studded with tiny pearl buttons.

Dressmaker detailing is important this fall. It's shown in delicate collar and neckline treatments. Ribbon crochet also makes a pretty point of interest as collar trim both back and front.

Bulky-look knits of the cable-stitch types come into their own in ski-styles, embroidered Tyrol types and in cardigan stylings.

Furry-blends are new in subtle colors. Hi-bulk orlons as well as zephyr soft wools give more warmth and less weight.

The sleeveless slipover vest, handsome in its own right, is worn this year over cotton shirts. Long-sleeved V-necked pullovers — edged in red, white and blue are a fashion salute to the Olympic styles!

And — easy washability and care is the keynote in all sweater collections.

Safety Psychology

Safe driving is easy. All you have to do is personality-analysis-while-you-drive.

So says Oswald Frey, prize-winning cab driver. Frey has driven a half-million accident-free miles through New Orleans' congested French Quarter.

His secret for success: Keep watching the car ahead of you. "When you see an old beat-up car with the fenders dinged in, you know that the driver hasn't much at stake. He probably won't be careful; he hasn't been careful in the past."

Frey lists three pet peeves: 1. Diaper drivers; 2. Young lovers; and 3. Ornament collectors.

"Watch out for the kid who's driving his dad's big job. He wants to lead the pack away from every light. And he'll cut in and out of lanes to get ahead."

"Whenever you see a young guy and his girl sitting kind of close in the front seat, give them plenty of room. He's clearly thinking of something else—not driving."

"And you might as well get off the street when you see a car with baby booties hanging from the rear-view mirror. The same goes with squirrel-tail fanciers. There's something peculiar about the way these people drive. I can never figure out what they'll do."

Frey's observations have paid off. He was selected by a committee from the taxicab industry to be one of the 25 drivers to receive the Plymouth Four-Star award.

HUSBAND WANTED — That's what 22-year-old Vida Hutto, of Houston, Tex., advertised in a local paper. She wants "a man I can depend on." Specifications are "six feet tall, likes to fish, must be between 25 and 35 years old, and earn at least $400 monthly. Applicants should telephone Hillcrest 2-3780, Houston." She has received 50 answers, one from Finland.

FOR EXTRA SAVINGS!

This GMC has "muscles" unsurpassed in its class!

The facts speak for themselves.

This new GMC 250-8 has 180 V8 horsepower standard. No other truck in its class comes even close.

The extra power delivers 276 foot-pounds of truck-propelling torque. Over-the-road truckers call it "guts" — and this GMC's got up to 33% more than the others.

It's at the top of the heap in frame-strength, too. There's as much as 10% more "muscle" in its chassis than in comparable trucks.

And there's more. For this rugged

GMC has 3500 lb. front axles and 7200 lb. rear — unsurpassed in its weight-bracket. It has extra-size brakes and springs.

Add it all up and you can see what GMC Blue Chip stamina really means. Especially when you team it with a GMC's dependable performance and Hydra-Matic savings.

For here's a truck that not only delivers the goods at lowest cost — but keeps delivering long after an ordinary truck would have faded out. Come in and talk it over!

HOLLYWOOD TODAY!

MOVIES - TV - RADIO

by Erskine Johnson

HOLLYWOOD — (N.E.A.) — mies' laps beyond dthe call of Wrong TV Awards: It isn't that there's anything wrong with television awards. It's just that TV comedy writer Seamen Jacobs thinks too many of the right people are getting the wrong citations.

"I don't want people to think I'm blasting TV awards," said Jacobs. "I'm all for them, especially when I'm in on them, like the time Ed Wynn won the Peabody Award back in 1930. In fact, says Jacobs, "I'm for more awards than we have now so that everybody, even the designer of test patterns, gets appropriate recognition for his own peculiar talent."

Jacobs was leading up to his personal nominations for outstanding performances "during no year in particular."

"With fear of contradiction and malice toward none," Jacobs wanted to recommend some new TV awards. Here they are:

Ralph Edwards, for the debonair way he clutches a scrapbook to his pain-racked bosom.

Desi Arnaz, for diction. Presented by the Cuban Friends Society.

JOHN CAMERON SWALZE, for his lower half only. TV has exploited so far only the half you see above the desk.

Bob Hope, for intentionally plugging a picture he wasn't in.

Edgar Bergen, for making it possible, through his ventriloquism on "Do You Trust Your Wife?" for lip-readers to follow his dummies' lines when the sound goes dead.

Red Skelton, for his unswerving faith in and appreciation of Red Skelton jokes.

Edward R. Murrow, for his furrow.

Mister Magee, for getting a higher Trendex rating than bathrooms during his commercials.

Pinky Lee, for sitting on mom-believe he doesn't fluff more than anyone in TV.

Johnny Carson, for delivering the funniest lines while scratching one's face.

JACK BENNY, for milking a laugh with a 63-second hurt look. This, the annual award of the Dairyman's League.

Charles Boyer, for the magnificently tenacious devotion to his 30-year-old French accent.

Hugh O'Brian, for being Wyatt Earp, the bravest marshal ever to face a barrage of blanks.

Sid Caesar, for removing his widow's peak without benefit of press agent.

George Gobel, for his gentlemanly discontinuance of resting his head on Pegzy King's. He discovered it was stunting her growth.

John Daly, for his singular answers to the "What's My Line?" panel's double-entendre questions.

Lassie, for being a hit without even changing her expression just once. Sort of a quadruped Alan Ladd.

Arthur Godfrey, for — come now, there must be SOME reason.

Tribe Back in Race: That's What Lopez Says after Ace Blanks Yanks on Two Hits

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer
Flame-throwing Herb Score, who admittedly "terrified" the proud New York Yankees in his "best ever" pitching performance Tuesday night, has put the cocky Cleveland Indians right back in the pennant race.

That was the claim made today by Tribe Manager Al Lopez when the dust settled from Score's two-hit, 11-strikeout triumph over the Yankees by a 3-0 score in the opener of a two-game series. Lopez said the near-classic was just the tonic "to give the team the lift it needed."

Score, major league strikeout king, never threw harder as he held the Yankees hitless for seven full innings. Elston Howard's clean double to open the eighth and Mickey Mantle's "Baltimore chop" single in the ninth were the only hits he allowed.

"Billy Martin, who struck out three times, was the only batter who wasn't afraid of Score," admitted Yankee Manager Casey Stengel. "All the others were terrified."

Best Game Ever Pitched

Score, who ran his strikeout total to 199 for the year with this performance, said it was "the best game I ever pitched."

Lopez and the Indians, who stubbornly insist that they aren't licked yet although they still trail by 7½ games, took Score's triumph with an "I told you so" attitude. Lopez went on to say he may use Score in relief occasionally from now on to help close the gap "although I don't like to."

Score celebrated the victory in a way dear to all pitchers with the first home run of his major league career in the seventh inning. He also had singled home the Indians' first run in the second inning just before Gene Woodling singled in the other.

The Milwaukee Braves increased their National League lead to three games by sweeping both ends of a day-night twin bill from the last-place Giants, 5-3 and 6-2. Bob Buhl (15th win) and Gene Conley (seventh) both went the route to win with the help of homers—Ed Matthews' three-run clout in the first inning of the opener and smashes by Joe Adcock and Del Rice at night.

Gilliam Steals Home

Junior Gilliam stole home with the winning run in the third inning to give the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers a 2-1 victory at St. Louis. Carl Erskine getting credit for his ninth straight victory with late relief help from Don Bessent.

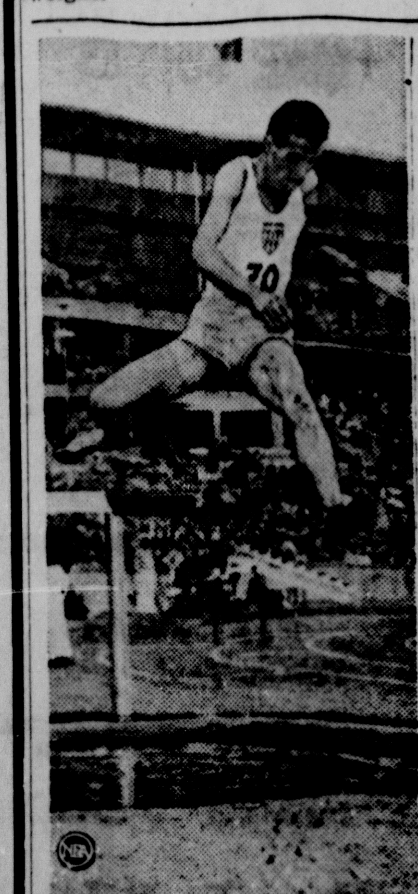

The third-place Cincinnati Reds came from behind with four runs in the eighth, including two on Ted Kluszewski's 32nd homer, to beat Pittsburgh, 7-4. Frank Robinson and Gus Bell also homered for the Redlegs.

In other games, Bob Boyd's 9th-inning single scored Grady Hatton from second base to give the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 win over Kansas City, which suffered its 16th loss in the last 18 games; Steve Gromek of Detroit scattered nine hits to beat Washington, 8-3, snapping the Senators' four-game winning streak; and Jim King's two homers led the Chicago Cubs to a 6-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, whose Robin Roberts suffered his 14th loss.

The Red Sox-White Sox night game was rained out and rescheduled as part of a day-night twin bill today.

Lions Ease Out Three; One Gridder Too Light

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP)—The Detroit Lions have placed Marvin Frankel, a halfback from Hillsdale (Mich.) College, and Ronnie Falls, a linebacker from Duke, on waivers and Horace Allert, a defensive end from Southwest Texas State, on the reserve list. Coach Buddy Parker said he is sidelining Allert because of his light weight.

SURE SHOT—George Papavasiliou took no chances in not clearing water jumps in the 3,000 meter steeplechase of the international military meet at Olympic Stadium in the British sector of Berlin. The Greek soldier's ample clearance paid off. He won in 9 minutes, 15.2 seconds.

Thompson Horse Takes Honors at Illinois State Fair

Midnight-Merry-Bird, Tennessee Walking mare owned by Dr. N. A. Thompson of Eldorado, took high honors at the Illinois State Fair.

Dr. Thompson rode Midnight-Merry-Bird in the amateur class and won championship honors. Later during the state fair the Thompson-owned horse was awarded the Gov. Stratton trophy as the best in the Tennessee Walking Mare class and in the stake class the Eldorado horse was reserve champion.

Midnight-Merry-Bird was entered in the Tennessee Walking class at the Saline county fair and won first place honors.

The honors won by Midnight-Merry-Bird are thought to be the highest ever won at the Illinois State Fair by an Illinois-owned horse.

No-Hitter in Kiwanis Play

Zan Hefner Hurls It For Braves, Gets Only Hit Made in Game

By David Nelson

Walkers Cleaners walked to victory over the Reds, 21-4, Sugar Creek pounded Gibbons, 18-5, and the Braves won on Hefner's no-hitter over Dairy Brand, 3-2, in Kiwanis league play yesterday.

Walker players were really that in their tilt as they drew 17 bases on balls. Potter, winning pitcher, gave up but two hits and walked two, while striking out five. For the winner's attack, Cannon and Coker homered, Pavelonis tripled, Hodson singled twice and Businaro singled.

Vinson singled and Gibbons homered for the Reds' only hit. Hansen was the losing pitcher.

Cushist pitched a three-hitter and Fields blasted two home runs to lead Sugar Creek to the win over Gibbons. Cushist, who walked only three, struck out five. Fields had two homers and a single, Karnes a triple and a homer, Draver two triples and Wiley two doubles for the winners. Leghorn, Vick and Darrar singled for Gibbons. Beal took the loss.

Zan Hefner hurled the no-hitter against the Dairy Brands. He walked five and struck out 10. Hefner also had the only two hits of the game as Woolard pitched a two-hitter in losing to the Braves. The winners scored first when Beggs got on an error and Hefner tripled. Dairy Brand tied the score when Woolard reached first base on an error and scored later on a passed ball. The Braves broke the tie on a walk and error and added one more in the sixth. Dairy Brand made a try in the seventh, tallying once on three walks and a passed ball, but could score no more.

Today's games are Cubs vs. Reds at 3:30, Pankeys vs. West Frankfort at 5:30 and Pickfords vs. West Frankfort at 7:30.

Tomorrow it will be Pirates vs. Walkers at 3:30, Pankeys vs. Jacksons at 5:30 and Social Brethren vs. VFW at 7:30.

Burke Not Hottest Prospect at St. Paul

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Jackie Burke may be the hottest golfer on tour since the Masters, but he has to take a back seat to Tommy Bolt and Sam Snead in the $20,000 St. Paul Open which starts Thursday.

Bolt appeared to be in the right mood to crack a 20-year hex on champions never repeating on the Keller Course. He shot a two-under par 67 in a practice round and pronounced himself ready to defend his title. Bolt won it for the first time last year with a seven-under par 269.

Snead is always one of the favorites at Keller and this year is no exception. He owns a better than $2,000 bulge over Dutch Harrison in Banker jacks. He has picked up $11,564.34 here in winning once, taking the Western Open, tying another time, finishing second in 1952 and third two other times.

Not Much Change in Golf from Old Days, Declares Jones; Says Room for Better Putts

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
HASTINGS ON HUDSON, N. Y. (AP)—Bobby Jones, one of the golfing immortals, said today that top-flight golfers would not improve as long as "man is built like an ape and plays like a monkey."

Jones, appearing at a party introducing the drastically new Spalding Dot golf ball, said that equipment has improved tremendously but that the "modern and old-time swings still are essentially the same."

The only way in which golf's grand slam man sees where somebody may run away from the fairway field is on the putting green.

"That's where the main opportunity is for improvement," Jones said. "We have better greens and the man who finds a completely reliable stroke will be the man to beat."

"They won't hit the ball much farther than we did in my day or than they are right now," Bobby said. "Actually, I don't think anyone is going to run off and hide by himself unless we ever develop a golfer who can hole 20 foot putts every time."

Bobby doesn't think that day will ever arrive. "When I started to reduce putting to a science, I couldn't hit my head with a handful of buckshot," he laughed.

More constant practice and more intensive play makes for better overall performers today, the Georgia master admitted. He also admits that the new generations are physically bigger and stronger and benefit somewhat from precision equipment.

Typewriter Gains Wide Use in Younger Ages

Planning ahead to the typewriter you'll give your child a far-off graduation reward? Think again. You may be wise to give it to him now, for there is a good chance he'll stand higher in his class on that graduation day because of it.

A classic study of nearly 15,000 school children showed school children who use typewriters improved in spelling, vocabulary, reading, ease of expression and—surprisingly enough—in handwriting and arithmetic.

Five or six years of age is not too young to begin the regular use of a typewriter at home. Modern portables can be easily understood and operated by a child.

Heretofore, the only difficult operation was the changing of a ribbon, often a messy and frustrating job even for an adult. Now one company, Royal, has cleared that up with a clean and easy ribbon changer. Even a child can switch ribbons in five or 10 seconds, handling only the spools, never the ribbon itself.

The earlier a child starts typing the better. The simple act of striking keys is not tiring, leaving the child able to complete his thoughts on paper. The fact, the studies showed, improves children's ability to express themselves, and the length and quality of their compositions.

Children with learning problems—slow readers, retarded children, left-handers, and children with poor muscular coordination—have been shown to benefit in some degree from the use of the typewriter.

Don't worry about your child's method of typing. Naturally the young child will learn to type by the hunt-and-peck method. A special experiment showed that, when the time comes, these children can learn the touch system of typing much faster than those who have never used the typewriter.

Just give him access to a portable and let him learn with it. Your reward will be his better marks.

The Blonde Cried MURDER

OUTSIDE the hotel, Tim Rourke and Shayne got into Shayne's car while Gentry sent one of his men up to watch outside 316 and called headquarters over the two-way radio in the police car.

Shayne pulled away slowly, and Rourke slouched down beside him and lit a cigaret, speaking for the first time since they entered the hotel.

"What do you make of it now?" Hunched over the wheel, Shayne growled. "Let's take a look at what's waiting for us in the morgue before we do any more guessing. You know every bit as much about all of it as I do. I didn't hold out anything on Will."

"Only difference is—you talked to the girl personally and we didn't. If she isn't nuts—"

Doesn't it begin to look more and more as though she isn't?" demanded Shayne. "It sounded haywire at first when she claimed she'd seen her dead brother and then scar-face claimed he was her brother. Now we know he isn't. And with this body picked up in the bay, there's a mighty good chance we'll discover he was in 316 just as she said, and was shoved out the window while she was looking for a phone."

"By scar-face?"

"It looks reasonable," said Shayne. "If he is the murderer and knows she's the only one who's actually seen the body in 316, it would give him a good motive for tracing her to my place and then trying so desperately first to make me think she's nuts and then to get his hands on her. Without her to testify about her brother's body, the corpse might well have drifted out to sea and never been found—at least, not until it was unrecognizable."

"Yeh. And it would explain how he came by Bert Paulson's wallet. If he killed the guy. But what's the Roney Plaza angle she handed you? Why didn't she tell you she was staying at the Hibiscus?"

"That's one of several things," said Shayne wearily, "that I want to ask her the next time she and I have a tete-a-tete."

Will Gentry's official car wasn't in sight as they went up the steps to the morgue entrance.

The night attendant was a wizened man with a wide gap in his front teeth that showed when he grinned at the detective and reporter from behind a scarred desk with a bright light overhead. Dr. Martin, the police surgeon, stood beside the desk as they entered, and he frowned, looking past them.

Shayne said, "We want to see the stiff that was pulled out of the bay tonight, Doc."

"Not much to look at."

THE doctor looked past Shayne as another car stopped in front. A door slammed and solid footsteps sounded on the stone steps. Will Gentry came in heavily, nodding to the police doctor and attendant. "Been over him, Doc?"

"Superficially. Throat cut all the way across with a sharp knife or razor. One to two hours ago. I'd say he went in the water quite soon after death."

"Lots of blood," asked Gentry matter-of-factly.

"Lots."

"What Will wonders," said Shayne, "is whether the job could have been done in a hotel room, say, without leaving blood behind it if he were shoved out a window fast."

Martin's eyes were bright with speculation. "It would have spurted," he said doubtfully. "If a pillow or blanket had been held ready and shoved over the wound fast, it might have soaked up the blood without a trace."

"Or a man's coat?" Shayne asked sharply.

"Yes. A man's coat." Martin shrugged. "He's wearing no coat by the way. In his shirt-sleeves."

"Identification?" asked Gentry. The attendant opened a desk drawer and drew out a manila envelope. The chief tore it open and withdrew an obviously expensive sealskin billfold that was still heavy with water. There were two credit identification cards from well-known hotels in New York, an accident insurance identification card.

ALL gave the name of Charles Barnes, and the insurance card gave an address on East 63rd St., New York City.

"That's everything we found on him," said Martin. "Not even a buck in the wallet. He's 20 to 25. Healthy. No distinguishing marks. Fifteen or eleven, at a guess. Around 150 before the blood drained out of him. You want anything else from me tonight, Will?"

"I guess not, Doc. Unless something comes up. That remind you of anything, Mike?"

"Nothing except the description we had from Jacksonville police tonight on Bert Paulson." Shayne's gray eyes were very bright. "Let's go down for a look."

The attendant got up hastily and preceded the three men to a heavy door in the rear opening onto a flight of stairs leading down into the concrete-lined coldroom. A dank chillness came up the stairs to meet them as they started down.

There were two white enamel tables under a glaring light in the center of the room, a bank of white, over-sized filing cabinets along one wall. Each cabinet had three drawers ab six feet long and three feet square.

RUTH MILLETT SAYS:

Don't Blame Husbands for Dull Lives

Why do so many wives blame their husbands for the dull lives they lead?

Because it is easier for a wife to put all the blame on her husband and decide there's simply nothing she can do to change her life—short of changing her husband—than it is for her to get busy creating a little fun and excitement.

Maybe her husband doesn't perk up when she says half-heartedly, "Would you like to see a movie tonight?"

But if she gives the movie she wants to see a big buildup, and dangles a little bait before him by mentioning that his favorite Hollywood glamor girl is in the picture she might get a better response.

Perhaps her husband doesn't ever offer to take over the children while she gets away for a few hours. That doesn't necessarily mean she has to be tied down.

If she can't afford a baby sitter she can usually find a neighbor who will be glad to take over her children occasionally if she will reciprocate by doing the same for the neighbor.

NEEDED: A LITTLE INITIATIVE

She may be sold on the idea

The Daily Register, Harrisburg, Illinois
Page Fourteen Wednesday, August 22, 1956

that her husband doesn't like entertaining and so has stopped inviting people in.

But did she ever try inviting HIS friends instead of hers for an evening and then watch him shine as a jovial host?

So her husband doesn't talk to her about his work? Lots of husbands don't.

But wives who have plenty of outside interests of their own don't feel shut away from the world just because they don't share in their husbands' business lives.

So her husband throws cold water on most of her plans and ideas.

Let him throw. He'll get tired of throwing cold water if it never does him any good.

No, husbands aren't responsible if their wives lead dull and boring lives. With a little gumption and imagination a wife can get some of the things she wants out of life, no matter how little co-operation and encouragement she gets from her husband.

Giving up is never the fault of anyone but the one who decides to give up.
